

Type Mastery

A program for practitioners of psychological type

Keeping your type skill set sharp. Understanding and being able to use psychological type instruments with greater depth and breadth has become the new standard for type practitioners. As the only Australian board member for the Association of Psychological Type International (APTI), I've seen how what's expected of type practitioners is changing internationally. I also have the great pleasure of working with type author and expert Katherine Hirsh from the United States on this unique program. – Jill Chivers.

Are You Up To Date?

- Are you using only the popular and traditional approach of explaining the dichotomies (E-I; S-N; T-F; J-P)?
- Are you confident in helping someone determine their best fit type using cognitive dynamics, instead of descriptors such as the dichotomies? Would you, for instance, be able to help someone understand the difference between say ESTJ and ESTP – without referring to, or exclusively using, the letters J – P? (which have less to do with the difference between those two types than most people realize)
- Do you find it hard to provide an answer when you continually hear from your participants that their type code changes every time they complete an assessment?
- Are you living your own type fully – do you know and understand the impact of your own type's dynamics (at least the first 2 functions) and can see the impact of those in your everyday interactions with others?

How It Works

This program is designed for type practitioners, working as independent consultants or internal to an organisation. It takes participants to a deeper level of understanding of personality and focuses on the use of the type whether that's a training or coaching program.

This program is two-days in length and features two Association for Psychological Type (APTi) Board Members – Katherine Hirsh from the United States and Jill Chivers from Australia.

This program is being offered on December 8 and 9, 2008 in Brisbane for the first time. A pre-requisite is that all participants are type knowledgeable and know their 4-letter type code (even if they're not sure it's best fit). Ideally participants are qualified with an appropriate organisation to use psychological type
